course of completion a new building for his blacksmith shop. His increasing business has made it neccessary to furnish more room for the execution of his work. This building will be one story high, and contains one spacious room, into which will be furnaces with all the appliances in that department, and will be used exclusively for blacksmithing. The old building, which is two stories high, will be remod dled and painted, and used as a storeroom for the display of agricultural implements. The horse shoeing department will undergo ome repairs and improvements, and the entire lot be enclosed by a high fence. shed will then be covered in all around the nside of the lot for the accomodation of plows, wagons, buggies, &c. When these changes and improvements have been fully completed. Keytesville will then possess one of the largest and most complete in all its departments of any manufactory of the kind in North Missouri. Mr. Tippett's well known thrift and enterprise has been the means of securing for him a reputation for doing the best work in the best style, and which extends far beyond the boundaries of the county. Such energetic men are beneficial to the interests of any town, and we are pleased to see Mr. Tippett's labor crowned with success.

Mr. A. T. Stewart, an old citizen Johnson county, has a small flock of sheep that brought him lambs last spring as follows: Out of thirty-one or two ewes five had three lambs each; twenty had two each, and the balance had one each. Over premium for the best cake was awarded to sixty lambs from thirty-one or two ewes If the farmers of this section who rely on tobacco for money necessary to meet their incidental expenses, and pay taxes, will just make a calculation of the income of a small herd of sheep, counting the wool and natural increase of the flock, and estimate the cost of keeping the sheep, and then estimate what their tobacco will bring them, and the cost and labor of raising it, and then compare figures, the reason why so many farmers find it difficult to get along and that corn was never known to grow so will be apparent. It does not follow that because a man has a herd of sheep, or cattle, or both, that he cannot also raise tobacco. In fact, a farmer with small means may not be able, or it may not be best for him to rely wholly on stock, but with a very small beginning any farmer can in few years, by proper management, have enough stock around him to render that business far more profitable, and much more agreeable than the marketing of any erop, much less tobacco, which requires more slavish work, and has a more degrading influence on a community than any in this place. other crop raised. Several beautiful babies were introduced, all of which the committee examined carefully for all defects. After which they retired to decide which of the number should be awarded the cup.

After weighing the matter well the committee decided to award the premium to Mr. P. C. Simmon's child. Dinner was then aunounced, when the crowd dispersed to fill the vacancies made by the time which had elapsed from an early breakfast to a late dinner. Thus an hour was spent enjoying the liberties and luxuries of a free country.

The enthusiasm did not go down with the sun on that happy day. Just at dark a large number of our citizens met on the corner of 3d and Broadway streets, accompanied by the band, which furnished some of its sweetest music. This was attended by cheers for the premium baby, the band and our national flag. Such are faint gleanings of the pleasure
